Question: I run an archive website at www.disclosed.ca which consolidates and indexes procurement contracts from federal government agencies. These contracts are made available via the Proactive Disclosure policy. For example, your agency discloses contracts and makes them available to the general public at the address -- <http://www.collectionscanada.gc.ca/disclosure/contracts/012030-200-e.html> I understand that reproduction of this information is free for non-commercial purposes and that a request must be made for commercial purposes. Currently, disclosed.ca is a non-commercial project. However I would like to make a commercial version. In order to do so, I will need to send a request to each agency. Is this correct? Or is there one agency that oversees the Proactive Disclosure policy? Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Re-use question: yes
